School Day Reminiscences.

No. 3.

With a satisfaction like that experienced by a person who pronounces "perfect" a likeness of himself which looks no per cent better than the original did the people declare that the new school-house was "the very picture of the old." It was the same style, 25x35, and, in its seat of new, sawn shingles, shone like a freshly caught herring. A plateau, about a quarter of a mile east of the former location had been selected as a site for the "sight to behold." It was erected on the south side of a street running east and west, on which it ended, the front being at the west, and the door significant opening towards "the star of晨光." The road-side, or end, a space about a red wide, and extending across the entire length of the face, had been fenced in for a wood-yard, it having been found somewhat dangerous to have wood deposited in the highway. As for the children, it was no easier to the town if they resorted to vehicles, from juvenile idiosyncrasies in the rats of travel, and it had not yet been discovered, in the rural district, that street life was destined to Young America.

The outside door was a little to the north of the centre of the west end of the edifice, and opened into an entry four feet in width, and extending to the south, the length of the building which owing, after the manner of Indian palaces, has, was open to the beggar public day and night, while it was used as a wood-shed, and a place to shed hats and caps. To the north of this entry was a dark closet, the door to which opened into the school-room, to the left of the inside door to the wood-and-shit shed. In this dark closet the girls kept their shawls, bonnets and dinner-pieces, and it was used as a place of solitary confinement for pedagogic-sentenced criminals. A knowledge-thirsty youth once came to this school with his breeches pocket filled with plum-pudding plucked from the home pantry. Lance time came round, and he asked permission to go out, it being "absolutely necessary." The request being absolutely denied he committed suicide, which, as he desired, secured his committal to the dismal shades of the dark closet. A man who was found asleep on a bed of shaws, with a pinched-lid halo around his mouth, while his fingers gleamed in the sky-like streaks of a pale northern light. It is not likely that any lad ever spent a pleasanter hour in obtaining an education.

The floor of the schoolroom consisted of a space 6x20, on each side of which the seats were arranged like those of an amphitheatre, the big boys occupying the top, and the little boys the bottom benches, after the manner of lumps in a sugar bowl. The desks, with commendable foresight, were made of plank a little thicker than the length of a good sized jack-knife blade. In the centre of the floor stood the stove, the funnel ascending perpendicularly to the chimney above. Not having many "thoughts that his," the pupils thought of something else that would, and taking shelter under the windowless front of the school-house, used to elevate snowballs into the chimney, and so into the stove. The teacher's inquiries were vain; "no body had seen anybody throwing anything, especially snow." There are several reasons, beside this, for supposing that the Know Nothings originated in a dissent school.

The new locality was as lovely as the old was hateful. To the south sloped a wooded hillside, and over the tops of tall trees, one could look, for miles, on meadow and upland, farm and forest, river and hills, and mountains them well, about ten rods, when it sloped downward, shaded with oak and maple, some ten rods more, terminating at the schoolhouse spring. Full a mile intervened between this natural terminus, and the commencement of the ridge again some distance to the southwest of a straight line. This should not be allowed to militate against the theory that these southeasterly running ridges are furrows turned up on the face of Nature by the plows manufactured at the North Pole, by Jack Frost & Co.; for a jump of a mile would be no more for one of those mammoth, self-terminating, iceberg shares than a deviation of an inch for one of iron, drawn by oxen. East was another ridge, triangular, its base twelve rods across, on the street, and which tapered down towards the spring, to which paths each side of this elevation led. Beyond the eastern ridge rose the great, forest-crowned hill from whose south-western base issued the spring's multiplying supply of water. North, the forest lined the street, the land sloping quickly away, diversified by pleasantly irregular fields and vales, among which was a tiny pool—the children's delight, a game of hide-and-seek, a swim, a dip, a splash.

A short distance west of the school-house, at the foot of the hill, on the north side of the street, was a sort of grocery store, kept by an old gentleman and his wife, who had no children on whom to bestow their goods, and the former of whom had no relatives in this country, yet, being afflicted with the prevalent lues hanker, was wont to "buy and sell, and get gain." The store was in the east, front room, half of which was fenced off from the rest by a counter. There, in the intervals of trade—which were usually from recess till noon, and from noon till recess again—the indolent old man sat and fitted lace-boots, which in those anti-sewing days were regularly supplied to all those who would sit him for $2.00 per case, of 12 pair. It had been generally observed throughout the district, that when the school was in session, the men did not lay nearly as many eggs, as during vacations. But as the grocer, though he kept no fowl, always had plenty of eggs for sale, there was no falling off in the home product of custard pies, which would have been a sore privation to the urchins who had discovered a very satisfactory solution to the most interesting problem of childhood, viz.—

Elegant Dwellings.

What is equal to a stick of candy? And which they had unanimously decided to be—"A stolen egg?" In these later days, when an egg often equals two, or three, sticks of candy, their ancient arithmetic would be a little at fault. And those precocious lads, who now attend school near some green stand, and who have happily corrected this mistake in figures, should gratefully reflect on the superior educational advantages which they enjoy.

It may never be known why children are always equal to be in a school room during a recess; but one might get some idea as to why they prefer to be in a grocery could he "roll back the lids of time" and look in at the store of which we write, while the thunders was busy out of doors. The good lady would put her featherbeds on the floor, in the centre of the room, and the pillars, each with a stick of candy in mouth, and packed full of peanuts, for which eggs had been paid, or laid ones morgaged, were pictures of less content. They were sure that confectionery agreed with them, and also felt assured that the lightning would not touch anything which did not agree with it, no, not even so much as a feather. To the fact that men do not have, or do not exercise, this deplorable wisdom of appropriation did the grocer mainly owe his business success. Most of his goods were visible to the naked eye, but the most profitable were spiritually discerned. He sold tea, coffee, sugar, molasses, snuff and tobacco. He also—

...had a stock of old rye,

Which he sold, on the sly,
To the farmers who buy,
And the men who fly
With the land which they till—
The seed that they sow,
Year after year, come to none,
Till the acres are gone,
And they come to a stop
Where the dewers never drop,
And the grasses for their crop
Are incapable of growth.

Town Meeting.

The inhabitants at the meeting held in the middle town hall Tuesday last, were small, but a sufficient number were present to prohibit the sale of malt liquors, the vote standing 83 to 59.

The Moderator, Noah Vining, stated that though some had supposed a hand vote on this question to be illegal, in the opinion of legal gentlemen, it was absolutely denied he committed any offence, which, as he desired, secured his committal to the dismal shades of the dark closet.

A man who was found asleep on a bed of shaws, with a pinched-lid halo around his mouth, while his fingers gleamed in the sky-like streaks of a pale northern light. It is not likely that any lad ever spent a pleasanter hour in obtaining an education.

The highest satisfaction is expressed by those whose opinion is worth anything, with the result of the town meeting, in voting to prohibit the traffic in malt liquors. We are fortunate in having first class officers, and as they will be supported by the sober and intelligent portion of the people, we are in hopes of ridding the town of this evil by making it too hot for certain parties who live upon the degradation of their neighbors.

Rev. Mr. Cowley, of South Weymouth officiated in the Union Church Sabbath. Mr. C. is strongly congenial in his sentiments and our Sabbath services will probably be well received.

A new branch of business is announced in the card of Mr. L. O. Crocker to his wife, Mrs. Lewis, architect of Boston, have undertaken conveniences with elegance, while the fine hard wood finish of black walnut, cherry, butternut, and maple, with beautiful fresco designs by C. W. Strauss, of Boston, are so harmoniously intermingled that the interior may well be pronounced a chef d'oeuvre of skill.

Those of our readers who are blessed with plethoric purses, and wish to invest surplus means in the creation of handsome dwellings, will be interested in details of the building which presents a circumference of 28 by 19 feet, with six bay and 15 by 29 in the rear, with attachment of woodshed, etc. The plan is of the Mansard style, with iron balustrade of open work, adding much to the whole effect. The main entrance door opens into a fine hall floored with marble, from which radiate the parlor and reception room, and staircase leading to the upper rooms. The dining room is contiguous to the reception room, and the fresco ornaments of this portion of the house are well worthy of study and examination. The ceiling is enlivened with a magnificent centre-piece of fruits and flowers, while the cornice is composed of elegant lines of color running from four brilliant Pompeian designs. The parlor is also decorated with elegant frescoes, an elaborate centre-piece and musical instruments in the line of comic producing a pleasant effect. Each of the principal rooms are finished with frescoed ceilings, one of the rooms containing 25 lines of color.

Abundant provision is made throughout the whole interior for supply of water, passage of waste, and for heating. Hot and cold water attachments are distributed above and below, a tank in the upper story and one in the cellar containing ample supply. Gas fixtures have also been provided throughout, and portions of the flooring and ceiling have been constructed in sections which can be taken up without injury to the wood, in event of repair to the pipes. The floors of the passages and uncarpeted rooms are laid in different colored woods, and these with the castings of doors and windows and other mouldings, are polished to the highest degree of perfection. The glazing is of the best French plate, the outer door being furnished with costly cut and bevelled glass panels. In short, every detail of the structure is of the most elegant character, and the manner in which the designs of the owner have been carried out proves the efficiency of the various artizans employed.

Our own experience in its use enables us to testify to its superiority for the purposes to which it is applied, and one trial will convince all of its unquestionable merits as a lubricant for machinery.

FRIDAY, MAY 12, 1871.

The Nation's Dead.
We are informed by a correspondent that Geo. S. Merrill, Esq., of Lawrence has accepted the invitation extended him by the committee to secure the services of a Speaker for Memorial Day May 30th, and will address the people of Weymouth on that occasion. We also place before our readers the following communication in relation to the matter.

BOSTON, May 9th, 1871.

Major F. A. BICKNELL,
Commander Lincoln Post, No. 40, G.
A. R. North Weymouth.

Dear Major:—Your communication informing me that Post 48, G. A. R., had appointed me a committee to secure the services of a speaker for Memorial Day, May 30th, was received same day. I was afraid, it being so near the time, (and knowing that many of those accustomed to speak on such occasions were engaged,) that I should not be successful in engaging one for you. After extending many invitations to able and eloquent speakers, and receiving replies, regretting that they were not able to accept the invitation on account of previous engagements, I am happy to inform you that I have this day received a line from Major Geo. S. Merrill of Lawrence, accepting our invitation, to be with us on Memorial Day, and address the people of Weymouth. Major Merrill was a brave and gallant officer of volunteers during the war, is at present, I think, Commander of Post 39 G. A. R., also Capt. of the 4th Lt. Battery, Mass. Vol. Militia; and is, I am informed, a splendid speaker, and will give us an address that will no doubt give great satisfaction. I saw Mr. Emerson, Esq., of East Braintree, has been engaged to deliver an oration in Marblehead, Decoration Day.

EAST BRAINTEE, May 4th, 1871.

Mr. Editor:—At the Annual meeting of the Union Engine Company, on Monday evening, May 1st, the chief engineer, J. Binney, Esq., presiding at the choice of Foreman, the company organized for the ensuing year by the choice of the following officers: Foreman, R. Gillespie; Clerk and Treasurer, T. O. Sullivan; 1st Assistant, M. Cleary; 2d Assistant, C. H. Loring; Stew. & E. Whitmarsh; Steersmen, Wm. Shen, H. Murphy; Axmen, T. Curley, D. F. Cleary; Board of Government, Wm. Shea, T. Curley, F. L. Cheek, J. F. Moriarity, D. Norton.

T. O. SULLIVAN, Clerk.

Randolph voted not to permit the sale of malt liquors, and instructed the Selectmen to prosecute offenders.

Funeral ceremonies were held in the Universalist church, So. Weymouth, last Sunday, over the remains of Mr. Stillman Thayer, a member of Co. II, 35th Mass. Regiment, in the war of the Rebellion, and who has been sick, from disease contracted in the service, ever since his return from the field. The Union National Bank of Weymouth, AT WEYMOUTH, IN THE STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS, April 29, 1871.

Mr. Editor:—At the Annual meeting of the Union Engine Company, on Monday evening, May 1st, the chief engineer, J. Binney, Esq., presiding at the choice of Foreman, the company organized for the ensuing year by the choice of the following officers: Foreman, R. Gillespie; Clerk and Treasurer, T. O. Sullivan; 1st Assistant, M. Cleary; 2d Assistant, C. H. Loring; Stew. & E. Whitmarsh; Steersmen, Wm. Shen, H. Murphy; Axmen, T. Curley, D. F. Cleary; Board of Government, Wm. Shea, T. Curley, F. L. Cheek, J. F. Moriarity, D. Norton.

T. O. SULLIVAN, Clerk.

Randolph voted not to permit the sale of malt liquors, and instructed the Selectmen to prosecute offenders.

South Weymouth.
Among letters received from those who were obliged to decline our invitation, I enclose one from Hon. Geo. B. Loring of Salem, which you have read at the next meeting of the Post.

SALEM, May 4th, 1871.

My Dear General:—I have received your invitation to address the people of Weymouth on Memorial Day, May 30th, and am much obliged for the courtesy. It would give me great pleasure to accept it, were I not engaged elsewhere on that occasion. You must therefore excuse me, and accept my warm desires for the welfare and prosperity of the Post which you represent. I assure you I have not forgotten my association with the citizens of Weymouth in their service of commemorating the valor of her soldiers in the last war, and I shall always count it one of the most gratifying events of my life, that I was allowed to join them in giving an enduring memorial to those who gave her a high and honorable record in that great conflict. For I am sure that while her memory stands, and the graves of her soldiers are remembered, the valor and devotion of the dead will inspire the living with those sentiments of humanity, and justice, and patriotism, which now irradiate the American nationality.

Truly yours,

GEO. B. LORING.

Hon. B. F. PRATT, Chairman of Com., North Weymouth.

Front Street Improvement.

The jury empanelled on petition of residents on the line of the Front street widening at Weymouth Landing, convened in Lincoln Hall, yesterday. Sheriff Thomas presiding over the Court. The counsel for the petitioners, who claim increased award of damage, were E. C. Bumpus and Edward Avery, Esqrs., and B. W. Harris, Esq., for Commissioners. The principal points of argument by petitioners' counsel, were in effect a detriment to premises by removal of trees, cutting off of lawns and shrubbery, which would seriously injure the estates, and that the benefits of widening the highway, while bearing to the general benefit of all estates, would not specially benefit the estates in dispute. In the argument for Messrs. E. W. and Elihu Hunt, several witnesses were called, among whom were Luther Briggs, and Wm. R. Emerson, architects, whose testimony went to establish the point of decided injury to the estates, for the present time, although they conceded the point of general benefit to estates by widening, which point was earnestly pressed by Mr. Harris, as it offset to the special and present injury.

On account of proximity to time of publication we are unable to give an extended report of the trial, this week.

Income Tax.
In answer to inquiry, as to whether persons not having any income tax to pay are required to make returns, we give the opinion of Commissioner Pleasanton, who says: "Persons whose gross income during the year 1870, estimated in United States' currency, did not exceed $2,000, are not required to make income returns, nor need they make any affidavits showing that their gross income did not exceed the sum above named."

A friend in need.
A female terrier belonging to Thayer & Davis, of Weymouth Landing, has voluntarily undertaken the task of bringing up a little pug who "cruel parent" killed the remainder of her progeny, and the affectionate manner with which the little grunter is urged to pull at the canine latches is both amusing and interesting. The devotion of the canine foster-mother to her charge is a rebuke to the mothers of human kind who allow the dictates of desire and love of pleasure to override the sentiment of maternal affection, and leave their babies to the tender mercies of a wet nurse.

W. H. Jones.
The Ladies will be interested in reading in what manner Messrs Ide Carter & Co., of Boston are prepared to minister to their wants.

W. H. Jones.
We are happy to testify to the earnest labors of our brother, Rev. D. W. Waldron, among this people; and that he is highly esteemed among us for his works' sake, and for his many excellent qualities as a friend and Christian brother.

Contractor Murphy left the workmen on the railroad in a shabby manner. Some forty or fifty are out of pocket for the amount of their claims for labor.

Speculation is still ripe in Real Estate, and some of the more shrewd ones expect still higher advances, as a large class of excellent nests are looking upon Duxbury as a quiet spot for summer residences, where real rest, health and enjoyment may be had for their families, and still leave them free for daily demands of business in the city. (Plymouth Memorial.)

The Ladies will be interested in reading in what manner Messrs Ide Carter & Co., of Boston are prepared to minister to their wants.

Quincy voted to allow the sale of "coeculus indicus extract," at the recent town meeting.

Braintree.
The "Boy Minstrel" of Braintree gave a musical and dramatic entertainment in the Town Hall last week, to a full and appreciative audience. The proceeds amounted to $40, and after a division of the profits, the lads very wisely deposited their "divvy" in the new Savings Institution.

The Randolph Register says that on Friday evening, 28th ult., a party of ladies and gentlemen called on Mrs. Ezra Thayer, of South Braintree, and presented him with a costly skein of wire, in honor of the 10th anniversary of his wedding day. Mr. Thayer entertained the party very agreeably during the evening.

Dear Major:—Your communication

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.

Letter from John O. Poye.

NO. XXII.

COLOGNE, Germany, April 12, 1871.

Mr. Editor:—Our journey from Rome to Cologne has consumed almost four weeks time and this has enabled us to spend a few days in each of the principal cities and large towns along the route of our travels through Italy, Switzerland and Germany, some of the most interesting, of which we will try to describe, commencing with Geneva, which is one of the chief ports of Italy, containing a population of about 150,000. It is remarkable for its palaces, and looks like a city of kings, being located directly on the sea-coast. The only harbor which it possesses has been made by building two break waters of heavy stone from the main land, leaving a narrow opening from the Sea near the center. This little harbor thus enclosed, is now literally filled with vessels. The City is built in the midst of a cluster of hills which rise one above another to the height of some three hundred feet, forming a beautiful panorama from the sea. The buildings being all of brick and stone, look very substantial, but not handsome. The streets are very narrow and irregular, winding about among the hills and valleys in the most disorderly manner, and averaging about twelve feet wide. They are well cared for and on pleasant days are crowded with people.

Genoa is evidently a rich commercial city, and it was here that Christopher Columbus landed when he made that memorable voyage across the Atlantic Ocean and discovered a new world. The Italian name of Columbus is "Columbo." He was born and reared in a small town eighteen miles from Genoa, but this city has recently erected a beautiful monument to his memory, and on the Island of Cuba we have seen another reared on the spot where he first landed on the American continent.

In the Gazette, referring to the article "An Inquirer after Truth," we would say, as author of the article which he referred to, that we should be happy to meet the inquirer, at any time and answer all questions that might be asked, as it would require too lengthy an article to answer such questions in print. We would however reply to the first question, in regard to the people feeling so kindly towards Mr. Rockwood, and at the same time wanting him to leave them, that the society and the community, one and all, we believe, without exception, entertain the kindest regard and esteem for Mr. Rockwood and his family, and would regret very much to have them move away from among us. But, as we have stated before, a part of the society wish to have a young man in the pulpit, claiming, in their opinion, that a much greater interest would be manifested, and the society increased and strengthened by such a change, and in consideration of this desire for a change in the ministry, Mr. Rockwood tendered his resignation, not wishing to stand in the way of the interests of the society. Time alone can only tell whether such a change will be beneficial to the interests of the Pilgrim society or not. Inquirer further asks: "Does God convert through the truth or through the minister's style?" This is not a difficult question to answer. It would be as useful for a minister of the Gospel to seek a station in some localities without style, as without a tongue or education, and with the moneyed aristocracy of to day, pride and style is of much more consequence, apparently, than a timid ambassador of God; a young minister, enterprising, aristocratic, proud, worldly, such as would possess some style, and from two to five thousand dollars a year, and some even more. Now who is society, and how does its members cannot afford to pay very large taxes for the support of preaching, it is better to keep a good man, one that will make the interests of his society his interests, for a moderate salary, than to tax the society to death, in trying to support a fashionable minister.

N. M.—

Turin, in Italy, was the next city which we reached, and has a population of some 200,000. It is the capital of Piedmont county, and is a thriving new city, laid out on a grand and generous scale, like Philadelphia with wide and regular streets running at right angles and handsomely paved. The three principal streets are 100 feet wide, each with elegant sidewalks 25 feet wide, and all covered with beautiful stone arches 20 feet high. The buildings are all of brick and stone, are very high and handsome. The city contains more than a hundred churches, a beautiful public garden, many handsome squares, the finest railroad station in the country, several elegant palaces, two museums, and many other public buildings. The walks around Turin are remarkably beautiful, and in its elevated neighborhood rise a chain of hills called "Colline," on which are built many superb villas.

CONSUMPTION, ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE.

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was other reason than the neglect of known and acknowledged means of cure. Many a human being dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which they have been snatched by consumption.

DR. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT.

and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious treatment, they are living.

Dr. Schenck's case in this case proves that, while sufficient vitality remains, that vitality is more important than any other factor in the cure of consumption.

To the faith of the invalid is made no representation, works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's method is as simple as it is radical.

Investments, Railroad and Real Estate Securities.

If we compare first-class Railroad Bonds with good Real Estate mortgages as an investment for the people generally, each will be found to have peculiar advantages of their own. For example—a Railroad Bond is readily and always negotiable; its cash value is known by all bankers, and hence it can be used as collateral at bank for temporary loans; the interest it bears is regularly and promptly paid, without trouble or expense to the holder; the investor in Railroad Bonds, unlike the owner of Real Estate mortgages, has no anxiety about the title to the property on which his bond is secured, insurance on buildings, or the annual payment of taxes, on which the continued soundness of that title depends.

On the other hand, it is to be admitted that a first mortgage on valuable Land is one of the best possible securities. The property can neither run away nor burn up. Its value is not affected by speculative combinations, nor by fluctuations in the amount of Railroad Revenue. The actual value of good land steadily increases with the steady growth of population.

It is because the 7-3 Bonds of the Northern Pacific Rail road are both a first-class Railroad security, and a Real Estate mortgage, on lands worth twice the amount secured, that we commend them to those of our readers who desire an investment that is safe beyond question, while readily negotiable and bearing a good rate of interest. They are a first lien, not only on a great Railroad and its traffic, but in addition are a first mortgage on valuable lands at the rate of 50 acres to each $100 of indebtedness. Add to this the fact, that the rate of interest (7.3 per cent. gold) is more than 8 per cent. currency, and that the bonds are always exchangeable at 10 per cent. premium for the lands on which they are secured, (practically giving the power of foreclosure at will,) and it is easy to explain the high favor with which these securities are now regarded. Central Pacific R. R. Bonds, secured only on the Railroad itself, and bearing only six per cent. gold interest, are now selling at 103, and they are well worth the price. In the light of this fact, it is not unsafe to predict that Northern Pacifics, bearing SEVEN AND THREE-TENTHS per cent. gold interest, secured both on the Railroad and on 23,000 acres of land to each mile of track, and now selling at par, will at an early day be worth 110.

An Anglo-American Enterprise.

Mr. Chas. W. Felt, formerly of Salem, Mass., has established a new paper in Liverpool and Manchester, England, called "The English American," set up from invention of Mr. Felt, called the combined type and devoted to the interests of free trade, and promotion of harmony between the two great nations. An article of particular interest to travellers between Europe and America who study economics, on the transit gives an outline of the business of the Allan line from Liverpool to Quebec and Montreal, which line takes passengers from the States, but the number, doubtless, would be very much increased in case of annexation, because it would be a line to American ports, and the bug-bear of custom house inspection upon the frontier would be removed. But the custom house inspection is not a very serious ordeal. We have twice encountered it, and the formula seems to be, point out one's trunk, upon which the officials make a chalk mark. The Canadian line has the best of steamers which can be reached in all the luxurious comfort of broad gauge railway carriages, and makes nearly three days of the passage in the smooth water of the River and Gulf of St. Lawrence, taking in a distant view of the Falls of Montmorency, and reducing the ocean passage to only six days—and is to Western and New England men not only the shortest but the cheapest. Americans like to travel in Canada, and it has always seemed a mystery to us that it does not become the Great Highway to Europe from New England and the West; especially as the Canadian line is also a New England line, making Portland its terminus for about half the year.

Fair. A fair is to be held in Boston, in aid of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and the ladies of the State are invited to meet at Horticultural Hall next Tuesday, at 4 P.M., to make arrangements for the fair. The circular of the Secretary makes the following appeal:—There are in Massachusetts, 600,000 domestic animals, all of whom are as much entitled to their rights. While all are given for our use, there can nowhere be found any warrant for abuse of them.

If every man and woman in Massachusetts should contribute one shilling for every animal they own, and one dollar for every one they love, this Society would need to ask no other contribution for the next ten years. As we are confident, that there are many thousands of men and women in the State who would give ten times one dollar, to insure kind treatment to some favorite animal of theirs, if it were to fall into other hands. It is to protect animals that deserve to be loved—if they are not—that this Society labors. But, more than this, it works for the humane education of the people, for out of this will grow not only kind treatment of the dumb creatures of the world, but peace, good will, and concord will be promoted towards our own race.

But we need not enlarge upon the general purposes of the Society, but proceed to the special purpose of this circular, which is to say that we desire an interest in this Fair in every town in Massachusetts, and that subscriptions, if possible, should be appropriated in each to a solid contribution. Those need not be confined to fairs, but the contributions found in fairs, but may embrace, as well, the products of the mill, the workshop, and the factory. If every producer thinks how largely he is dependent upon animals, and therefore that for all their labor he pays only "board and lodging," he may feel willing to contribute something to help us to ensure these well-carried blessings to other animals, or to punish the men who cruelly withhold them.

The Beach.

The coming season will bring an unprecedented rush of visitors to Nauset Beach, and the hotels are making arrangements for their accommodation. In addition to the great enlargement of the Rockland House, a new hotel is being erected near the foot of Sagamore, to be called the Ocean House, while the proprietors of Strawberry Hill are completing a large hotel at the landing. The company own about one thousand acres of beach land, and we know of no prettier seaside location than the flat just above the level of the hard beach, as it commands a fine water view and is free from the mosquitoes which invades many points in that quarter.

Braintree. The meeting-house of the Union Society once stood on the church lot in Hollis street, Boston, and was removed to Braintree in 1810. It originally had two steeples.

At the Sabbath School Concert in Dr. Storrs' Society, held at Lycene Hall at 2 P.M., after the collation, Hall's Brass Band, 20 pieces, will furnish music for the procession and will also play in the hall. The committee, Messrs. E. S. Dean, B. J. Loring, S. Remond, J. R. Carmichael and W. L. Gage, will visit the citizens to solicit contributions for the collection, and the ladies are desired to furnish wreaths, bouquets, etc., for decoration of the wagons of the fallen heroes.
